This month we're gonna...

WATCH IT

Smart People (Miramax)

Sarah Jessica Parker, Dennis Quaid and Ellen Page star in this romantic dramedy about a bitter middle-aged widowed professor, his overachieving daughter, freeloading brother and an old student who reappears in his life after an accident and shakes everything up.

Baby Mama (Universal)

A successful single woman decides to start her family only to find out that it will have to be via surrogate—and when her Baby Mama shows up at her apartment door looking for a place to stay, things get a little wild. It's a touching story, but this movie is all comedy—it stars Tina Fey and Amy Poehler of Saturday Night Live fame.

READ IT

Any book that tells you exactly how to answer the question, "How did that baby get in your tummy?" is on our mommy must-have reading list. Every scenario that makes you cringe is covered in this lovely instructional book. Just Tell Me What to Say, by Betsy Brown Braun

We'd stand in line to read an instruction manual if Jennifer Weiner wrote it, but we're especially excited about the return of Carrie, the lovable heroine in Good in Bed—she's making a comeback in Certain Girls, on shelves April 8th. Certain Girls, by Jennifer Weiner

There are lots of great books out there to tell you how to live a little eco-friendlier, but the old classic The Green Book is still one of our favorites. It's easy to read and even easier to apply to your daily life. The Green Book: The Everyday Guide to Saving the Planet One Simple Step at a Time, by Elizabeth Rogers and Thomas M. Kostigen

Bloom!

The flowers are budding, the birds are singing and we're so glad that the snow is gone. These wildflower seeds make the perfect favor for spring showers—all your guests can take them home and toss them out in the yard for some easy, gorgeous flowers.

DO IT

- » Laugh more than usual in celebration of National Humor Month. And thankfully, we'll have new episodes of The Office to make things easier.
- » Sing your heart out during the 4th week of April—we figure everyone should have a little fun during National Karaoke Week.
- » Indulge in a childhood favorite on National Peanut Butter and Jelly Day on the 4th.
- » Break out the tissues and the Titanic DVD in honor of Titanic Remembrance Day on the 15th. (And remember why you fell in love with Leo all those years ago.)
- » Do your part to make the world a better place on Earth Day, April 22nd, by reducing, reusing and recycling—and keep it up all year long.
